(describe the noncompliance specifically and in detail. Attach additional pages if necessary.)

You cannot be evicted from your home without a court order. This notice does not mean that you must leave your home without the opportunity to first go to court to challenge the termination of the rental agreement.

- First notice. If you, the tenant, correct the noncompliance within seven (7) days from the date of delivery of this notice, the rental agreement will continue and you will be permitted to stay. If the owner files in court to evict you, you, the tenant, have the right to challenge the termination of the rental agreement by going to the court hearing to respond and tell your side of the story. If you do not go to the court hearing, the court may enter a judgment against you and issue a court order evicting you from your home.

Even if you correct the noncompliance, if a second material noncompliance with the rental agreement occurs within six (6) months of the first noncompliance, the owner may terminate the rental agreement and file in court to evict you.

- Second notice. You were given previous notice of noncompliance on _____ (date). Therefore, you have been in material noncompliance twice or more within a six (6)-month period. As a result, the owner/agent may terminate the rental agreement in seven (7) days from the date of delivery of this notice.
